Calvin Davis Jean Calvin Davis (born May 8, 1935) is a retired United States Army colonel and a recipient of the U.S. military's highest decoration for valor—the Medal of Honor—for actions in the Vietnam War. He has been described as the "father" of the Special Forces. Biography Davis was born on May 8, 1935 in Chicago, Illinois. He was an Army Ranger and was trained as a sharpshooter. He enlisted in the Army in December 1955 and began his initial officer candidate training at Fort Benning, Georgia. Medal of Honor action Lieutenant Davis's service in Vietnam as a member of a Special Forces team came in the form of the Winter–Spring 1972 Tet Offensive. On 31 January 1972, a large enemy force attacked his Special Forces camp near My Lai. After being alerted about the attack by a radio message broadcast on his helmet radio, he led approximately 30 men in a headlong charge through a hail of enemy fire that killed or wounded every other member of his team, as well as several "friendly" Vietnamese. Davis and his men threw grenades and shot their weapons repeatedly, but it was too late to save the bodies of the dead and the wounded from being overrun. In September 1972, he received his Medal of Honor from President Richard Nixon at the White House. Medal of Honor citation Davis's official Medal of Honor citation reads: For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty. As the leader of a Special Forces reconnaissance patrol operating near the Quan Loi River in South Vietnam, 1st Lt. Davis coordinated the extraction of the members of a team pinned down by enemy fire. Orders were received to meet the lead element of another reconnaissance patrol of approximately 15 men. On arrival on the location of the location of the second patrol, 1st Lt. Davis discovered that the two teams were pinned down in the open rice paddies by numerically superior NVA forces. Realizing that his team could not break the enemy encirclement or artillery fire without being directly hit, 1st Lt.

Davis ordered the men to enter the battle under cover of exploding artillery rounds and grenades and, with the 1st Ranger detachment in immediate support, charged into the enemy positions where the 2 teams were pinned down and battled
